

Liability Rules in No-One's' Land

Abstract Prof Christine Godt

Carl von Ossietzky University Oldenburg, Germany

I will speak about the legal rules and practice of regulating ship collisions in international waters.

The applicable body of maritime law is a mixed set of national and international rules which derive of various legal traditions, although it is commonly held that “England” is the home country of contemporary maritime law.

The talk analyzes the emerging structures of law, and sheds light on the consequences for the day-to-day work of lawyers.
